Geachte relatie,

Voor zowel buitenlandse als binnenlandse afnemers heeft Van Geest Nurseries een ruim aanbod aan voorjaars- en zomerbloeiende bolgewassen, vaste planten, rozenstruiken en heesters. Door onze nauwe samenwerking met de beste kwekers kunnen wij een zeer uitgebreid assortiment leveren. Bij Van Geest Nurseries is geen aantal te gek! Of het gaat om 1 of 1.000.000 stuks per soort, wij verpakken zoals u dat wenst. Tevens willen wij u op ons Cash & Carry assortiment wijzen. Dit zijn standaard verpakkingen die bij onze vestiging af te halen zijn.

Door onze ervaringen in dit segment sinds 1936, zijn wij marktleider in diverse landen binnen Europa. Binnen ons bedrijf hebben we een systeem ontwikkeld zodat we uw totale order zo efficiënt mogelijk kunnen verpakken en afleveren. Desgewenst verpakken wij de producten per perk en groeperen wij ze per straat of wijk. Elke verpakking krijgt een label met daarop het door u aangegeven vaknummer. Op onze afleverdocumenten kunt u altijd terugvinden in welke (genummerde) doos welk soort verpakt is. Dit alles maakt het voor uw hoveniers gemakkelijk om te zien waar iets geplant dient te worden.

Gebaseerd op uw wensen selecteren wij een passende verpakking om de producten in te versturen. Of het gaat om kunststofkragen, dozen, netlon zakken, houten kisten of papieren zakken, wij garanderen altijd de juiste verpakking waardoor de kwaliteit behouden blijft en u het beste bloeiresultaat heeft.

Kwaliteit, service en betrouwbaarheid staan bij ons voorop. De kracht bij Van Geest Nurseries is het vermogen om oplossingsgericht te denken, waardoor er voor u als klant een schitterend eindresultaat wordt neergezet.

Met vriendelijke groet,

Sales team
Van Geest Nurseries

Dear Customer,

Van Geest Nurseries offers a wide range of both spring and summer flowering bulbs, perennials, rose bushes and shrubs, which can be despatched to customers both in Holland and abroad. By working closely with the very best growers, we are able to offer a wide range of products. We handle volumes according to our customer's needs, nothing is too large or too small. We will pack them according to our customer's wishes. We would also like to draw your attention to our Wholesale Cash & Carry range of products. These are standard unit counts and are available for collection. Delivery can be arranged upon request. We advise you to pre-order until July via sales.nl@vangeest.net.

Van Geest Nurseries have developed extremely efficient systems over the years to pack and deliver orders tailor-made to suit individual customer's needs. For Landscapers and Local Authorities we offer the facility to pack and label orders according to planting plans, thereby reducing labour costs. Boxes can be labelled with contents, bed number and location, making unpacking and planting of a consignment easier for landscape teams.

Based on our customer's needs, we select suitable packaging for transport, whether it is plastic crates, cardboard boxes, nets, wooden crates or paper bags, we guarantee the best material to keep the quality of the bulbs at a peak and get the best flowering results.

Quality, service and reliability are our priorities. The strength of Van Geest Nurseries is the ability to provide solutions to customer's needs, thus ensuring delivery of product in perfect condition.

Best regards,

Sales team
Van Geest Nurseries

ALLIUM

Many hundreds of Allium species exist, but only a modest few have made a name for themselves as garden plants. This text describes the most significant ones. The genus, Allium also includes important plants used for human consumption such as onions, leeks, shallots and the familiar cooking herb, chives. The natural distribution of these species is limited to the temperate regions of Europe, Asia and the Middle East. The ornamental onions distinguish themselves by their great diversity in colour, inflorescence and flowering height. Many species bloom in early summer - just after the spring-flowering period and just before the exuberant full bloom of summer. When slightly bruised, the bulbs, leaves and stems of these plants give off a definite onion scent. Although this has been considered a problem when using ornamental onions as cut flowers, the odour quickly disperses after the stems have been immersed in water for a few moments. Naturally, only the tall and middle-tall species are used as cut flowers. Several species require a bit of special treatment, but will remain beautiful for a long time, even as dried flowers. All species can be used in the border. Certain small species are just perfect for a rock garden, and several lend themselves to naturalising.

ANEMONE

Origin: South Europe (around the Mediterranean Sea)

Before planting you should soak the tubers for a couple of hours. They will grow in any type of soil which is well-drained. Very often Anemone coronaria is sold mixed. Even the small corms (2-3 cm) will flower!

Anemone coronaria single flowering version is also called the "Florist" or "Poppy-flowered" Anemones. We divide them into two groups: Anemone coronaria 'De Caen' varieties (single flowered) and 'St. Brigid' varieties (double flowered).

Flowering period: May-August

Planting depth to base of bulbs: 5 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 10 cm

Light requirements: sun or light shade and sheltered spot (PM sun)

Landscape uses: border, beds, pots

CAMASSIA

The origins of the genus, Camassia must be sought in the western part of North America where this species is found growing in the mountains and on the prairies. Remarkably, this bulbous plant is relatively unknown. Seven or eight species exist, but only three are commonly cultivated. The name 'Quamash' comes from a North American Indian language. The cooked bulbs of certain species were also eaten by the Indians. The various species have a very natural look and fit in perfectly between perennials, both in borders and among ground covers. Camassias are usually only available from firms that specialise in rare species.

CORYDALIS

At least 200 different species of Corydalis are known. They can be either annual plants or ones that will naturalise. Among the latter group are some that have tubers. Of these, solida is the only one which is fairly commonly cultivated.

Its name is derived from the Latin word 'korydalis' meaning 'crowned lark', since the markings on the flower are similar to the tufted crown of a lark.

Corydalis comes originally from a wooded habitat, meaning that it tolerates various degrees of shade. Although its colour is not unusual, this flower's shape is quite unique. Its decorative, finely textured foliage is bluish-green. Corydalis is very suitable for naturalising under trees and shrubs.

Flowering period: March - April

Average plant height: 15 - 20 cm

Planting depth to base of bulb: 5 - 10 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 8 - 10 cm

Light requirements: partial shade

Landscape uses: rock gardens, and under shrubs and trees

CROCUS (Autumn flowering)

Crocus Sativus / Saffron Crocus.

Originally, saffron was obtained by drying the stigmas of Crocus sativus over an open fire. Saffron has been mentioned since ancient times, e.g., in ancient Egypt and in the Bible, often being said to be an extremely valuable medicine and dye. The dye still plays a role in marriage ceremonies in India. It has long been a very costly material, even being used as a medium of exchange. During the first half of this century, Spain was producing 50,000 kilograms of saffron annually. You can imagine how many crocus flowers were needed to produce this much by knowing that it takes the pistils of 150,000 crocus flower to produce 1 kilogram of saffron! C. sativus, its species name meaning 'very good to use', belongs to the autumn-flowering species.

CROCUS (Large Flowering)

Very few early-flowering bulbous, tuberous and cormous plants are so massively planted as the Crocus. Together with tulips, hyacinths and narcissi, these plants are the most commonly found 'bulb' plants in gardens and parks. More than 100 species are known, but only thirty have been cultivated. The most popular crocuses are the ones that no longer closely resemble their wild ancestors. Some crocuses flower in the fall, but these are fairly rare. Crocuses are very similar in appearance to the Colchicum, to which they are distantly related. The Crocus can be distinguished from the Colchicum by the number of stamens: the Crocus has three, while the Colchicum has six. Many crocus species come from countries bordering the Mediterranean.

The effect of crocuses is especially beautiful when they are planted in large numbers. For a massive effect, 100 to 150 corms should be planted. One important growing condition is that crocuses must have a well-drained soil. Crocus bulbs remaining in the ground will always bloom a bit earlier than the ones planted the previous year. The calyx-shaped flowers open only when the sun shines or when there is a lot of light; they close up in rainy weather and at night. Crocuses are lovely in lawns as well as in the perennial border where they join the other very early perennials in ringing in the flowering season. Crocuses have narrow leaves with a silver-grey stripe down the middle.

Average plant height: 7.5 - 12.5 cm

Planting depth to base of bulb: 12.5 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 2.5 cm

Light requirements: full sun to partial shade

Landscape uses: borders, rock gardens, in lawns, under shrubs and trees, and for indoor forcing

CROCUS (Species)

Popular names: Snow crocus and Botanical crocus

This crocus, which grows wild in such places as Greece, has smaller corms and also produces smaller flowers. Their flowers, however, appear in greater numbers than those of the familiar 'Dutch crocuses'. Many cultivars have bicoloured petals and a striking yellow centre. This species is available in a very wide assortment.

Flowering period: February - March

Planting depth to base of bulb: 12.5 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 2.5 cm

Light requirements: full sun to partial shade

Landscape uses: borders, rock gardens, in lawns, under shrubs and trees, and for indoor forcing.

ERANTHIS (Syn. Winter Aconite)

Eight species of Eranthis are mentioned in the literature. Only two of these, E. hyemalis (from Southern Europe) and E. cilicica, (from Turkey) are commonly cultivated. The name 'Eranthis' comes from the Greek meaning 'spring flower'.

Since these species originated in a wooded habitat, they require a loose soil with sufficient humus. Soil that dries out quickly is less suitable, but it should drain easily during the winter. The tubers are small - about the size of a pea - and irregularly shape. They must be planted no later than September if they are to flower well the first year. Soaking the corms in lukewarm water for 24 hours prior to planting aids their development. The flowers are similar to buttercups and have very short stems. Characteristic of this plant are green involucre leaves that enclose the flower like a collar. The flowers open only when the sun shines, closing during dark weather. They can start flowering as early as February, sometimes when the snow is still on the ground.

EREMURUS

Its enormously tall flower clusters - towering up to 65 inches (175 cm.) above the ground - make it one of the most spectacular bulbous plants in the entire assortment. The name of this genus comes from 'ekemos' meaning 'solitary' and 'oura' meaning 'tall'. All of the several dozen species originated in Asia. Unfortunately, the Eremurus is little used in gardens. Its tuberous roots have a very strange shape; thick fleshy roots fan out in all directions from a central hub. These roots must be handled very carefully. The soil should be well-drained, so add sufficient sand to heavy clay soils.

Flowering period: May - July

Average plant height: 100-250 cm, depending on the species or

Planting depth to base of bulb: 15 cm

ERYTRONIUM

Of the approximately 16 species, no fewer than 15 are native to North America. Only one species, Erythronium dens-canis, grows in Europe as well as in Asia (as far east as Japan). This is the species known as Dog's-tooth violet because of the shape of its tubers. The natural habitat for this species is a woody mountainous region. They are not easy to cultivate.

Plant the small tubers as soon as you acquire them because they dry out quickly. Having a nutrient-rich, moisture-retentive soil is important. Experience has shown that the plants can remain planted in the same location for many years where they can spread and produce increasingly more flowers. A layer of mulch during a dry summer can work wonders by preventing the plants from drying out.

Flowering period: April - May

Average plant height: 30 cm

Planting depth to base of bulb: 10 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 15 cm

Light requirements: full or partial shade

Landscape uses: under trees and shrubs, well-drained rock gardens, and perennial beds.

FRITILLARIA

The genus, Fritillaria consists of almost 100 species. All of these are found in the northern hemisphere, with the main habitats being the areas around the Mediterranean. Only a limited number are being cultivated, but interest in this genus is very much on the rise.

Popular names: Snake's-head fritillaria and Guinea-hen flower

Fritillaria meleagris does not much resemble F. imperialis. This species is native to Europe where its bulbs usually grow in very moist locations.

For better growing conditions, soil can be improved by adding upgraded black peat. The best results are achieved when the plants are not disturbed. To provide an ideal situation, sphagnum peat can be introduced between the plants. Doing so allows the seeds to germinate as well. These fritillarias are usually sold as mixed colours but certain specialists offer cultivars. The white cultivar known as 'Alba' is especially lovely.

Flowering period: April - May

Average plant height: 25 cm

Planting depth to base of bulb: 10 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 5 cm

Light requirements: full sun to partial shade

Landscape uses: borders, rock gardens, lawns, under trees and shrubs, and perennial beds.

GALANTHUS (Syn. Snowdrops)

Only a few plant enthusiasts know that there are no less than 75 species and cultivars of snowdrops. Practically without exception, however, all of them bloom very early in the spring and have milky-white flowers. In fact, the name 'Galanthus' means 'milk-white flowers'.

HIPPEASTRUM

A certain amount of confusion exists surrounding 'Hippeastrum', the plant's scientific name, and 'Amaryllis', its common name. The Hippeastrum, a bulbous plant that originated in South Africa, has 4 to 6 large flowers on a hollow stem. Amaryllis belladonna is another bulbous plant from South Africa, but this plant has 6 to 12 smaller flowers on a solid flower stem. For reasons which are difficult to fathom but certainly confusing, the Hippeastrum is known almost the world-over as 'Amaryllis'. The genus, Hippeastrum is composed of several species, while Amaryllis belladonna is the only species in the genus, Amaryllis. The numerous Hippeastrum cultivars being grown were developed from hybridisation's involving several species.

HIPPEASTRUM Syn. 'Amaryllis'

HYACINTH

The propagation and cultivation of the hyacinth bulbs themselves is uncommonly complicated. Much professional experience and special soil is required for good results, and the Dutch growers have been successful in their attempts. Growing them to produce flowers, either indoors or in the garden, however, is very simple.

Flowering period: March - April

Average plant height: 25 cm

Planting depth to base of bulb: 20 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 15 cm

Light requirements: full sun to partial shade

Landscape uses: beds and borders

HYACINTHOIDES

Not that long ago these bulbs were known as Scilla. The name has changed but they still brighten up your bushes and summer flowering perennials by planting these lovely bulbs in between. And the big benefit is their ability to multiply every year.

Hyacinthoides hispanica

This is one of the tallest-growing scilla and also the one that is last to flower (one rare species blooms in the fall). Hanging from the sturdy, round flower stalks are lots and lots of broad, bell-shaped flowers.

The colour of this species found in the wild is violet-blue, but there are also large-flowering pink, white, light blue and dark blue cultivars available. Usually, these bare bulbs are sold as a mix of colours. Plant the bulbs in locations where the soil is rich in nutrients and sufficiently moist, and do so as soon as possible after acquiring them.

Family: Liliaceae

Popular name: Spanish Bluebell

Synonym: Endymion hispanicus, Scilla campanulata

Flower colour: white, pink or blue

Flowering period: May

Average plant height: 30 - 40 cm

Planting depth to base of bulb: 10 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 10 cm

Light requirements: full sun to partial shade

Landscape uses: borders, rock gardens and perennial beds

Hyacinthoides non-scripta

Family: Liliaceae

Popular name: English Bluebell

Synonym: Scilla nutans, Endymion non-scriptus

These scilla look somewhat like the previous species but do not grow as tall and blooms a bit earlier. The flower stalks often lean a little toward one side because the flowers bloom all on one side.

Flowering period: May

Average plant height: 20 - 30 cm

Planting depth to base of bulb: 8 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 8 cm

Light requirements: partial shade

Landscape uses: under trees and shrubs, and in frequently mowed lawns.

IPHEION

This pretty bulbous plant can be found growing in the wild in South America. Surprisingly, its winter hardiness is good. Ipheion is not widely cultivated and thus not commonly used.

Like so many other bulbous plants, Ipheion cannot tolerate wet soil. Naturalisation is possible, but one drawback is that the plant's grassy leaves emerge before the winter season and then freeze. This has no negative effect on flowering. The shape of the flowers is unique: two wreaths of three petals join to create a star shape. 'Wisley Blue' has deep-violet flowers.

Flowering period: April - June

Average plant height: 10-20 cm

Planting depth to base of bulb: 10 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 5 cm

Light requirements: full sun

Landscape uses: borders and rock gardens.

IRIS DUTCH ( Syn. Hollandica)

These irises never grew wild in the Netherlands. Instead, they are the products of hybridisation carried out by a Dutch plant breeding firm by the name of Tubergen. Two species playing an important role in the development of these hybrids were I. xiphium and I. lusitanica. For growing them, a rich, well-drained soil is important for success. The bulbs can be left in the ground if desired, but there is a risk of disease. The flowers are 10 cm in diameter, and the flower stalks are very sturdy - a quality which makes them quite suitable for use as cut flowers. The colour assortment is very wide and includes bicoloured varieties.

Flowering period: June - July

Average plant height: 60 cm

Planting depth to base of bulb: 15 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 10

Light requirement: full sun

Landscape uses: beds, borders and as cut flowers

IRIS SPECIE

These dwarf irises, which originally came from such areas as Turkey and the Caucasus, are cultivated on a fairly large scale. They bloom very early in the season. The flower is quite large in relationship to the plant as a whole, and the flower colour of the species is violet-purple. I. reticulata are especially appropriate for use in rock gardens. Naturalising is possible. One drawback is that they develop many leaves during the flowering stage, diminishing an otherwise dramatic appearance.

Flowering period: February - March

Average plant height: 10 cm

LEUCOJUM (Syn. Acis)

Leucojum aestivum Popular name: Summer snowflake

Depending on the bulb size, three to five bell-shaped flowers dangle from each long, fairly sturdy flower stem. Summer snowflakes require a moist habitat (e.g., on the edge of natural ponds). 'Gravetye Giant' has large flowers on stems that easily reach a length of 50 to 60 cm.

Summer snowflake bulbs are much more available than those of Spring snowflakes. The bulbs can remain planted in the same location year after year. If left undisturbed, they produce more and more flowers. Planting them on time in October is essential if you want to enjoy lots of flowers in the following spring. The soil must be high in nutrients.

Flowering period: April - May

Average plant height: 40 cm

Planting depth to base of bulb: 10 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 12 cm

Light requirements: partial shade

Landscape uses: borders, rock gardens, under shrubs and trees, and as cut flowers.

MUSCARI

Popular name: Grape hyacinth

The genus, Muscari contains about 30 species. Some of these, such as M. botryoides and M. comosum, originated in the Mediterranean region, while others of this genus can be found in their natural habitats in Asia Minor and the Caucasus. Most species are so extremely winter hardy and easy to grow that no garden should be without them.

Muscari planted in a favourable location where no water can settle during the winter can naturalise easily. One drawback, however, is that the leaves often emerge before the winter season. The frost damage thus produced remains visible during the flowering period although the flowers themselves are seldom damaged. A famous planting of them at the Keukenhof gardens in Holland is known as the 'blue river'; this is a dense planting of muscari that winds through the shrubs, some of which bloom at the same time. Year after year, this is one of the most photographed scenes in this spectacular park. The species used in this location is Muscari armeniacum, the most familiar of the grape hyacinths and actually the only one that has a right to that name.

Flowering period: March - May, depending on the species

Average plant height: 10 - 25 cm

Planting depth to base of bulb: 12.5 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 8 cm

Light requirements: full sun to partial shade

Landscape uses: borders, rock gardens, and under shrubs and trees.

NARCISSI & DAFFODILS

Popular names: Daffodil and Jonquil

Narcissi join tulips, hyacinths and crocuses to make up the most important of the spring-flowering bulbous, cormous and tuberous plants. Narcissi are used in abundance in gardens. This has much to do with their winter hardiness, the ease with which they naturalise, and their many applications. The various colours and flower types available also play a role in their popularity. The large-flowered yellow daffodils in particular are the flowers that promise that the warm spring air is on the way. The number of wild species varies widely, depending on how one defines 'wild species'. Usually this number is limited to 26 (not counting the subspecies and varieties). In addition to these, many hundreds of cultivars are known. The most important colours are yellow, white, orange-red, orange and salmon. Many cultivars display marked or subtle differences in colour between the corona (trumpet or cup) and the perianth (petals).

Flowering period: February - May

Planting depth to base of bulb: large bulbs: 20 cm; small bulbs: 12.5 cm

Spacing between bulbs: 7.5 cm for large bulbs; 2.5 cm for small bulbs

Light requirements: full sun to full shade

Landscape uses: Narcissi are suitable for almost every possible application: fields, beds, containers, borders, rock gardens, as cut flowers, and for forcing.

ORNITHOGALUM

Ornithogalum Saundersiae(Spring delivery) is a specially imported, treated bulb to grow in pots. They can be planted in pots from the beginning of February, until the beginning of July. Each bulb will produce a flower after 6-7 weeks, which will still look attractive later on, producing spectacular seed heads.

TULIPA

Of all the bulbous plants, the tulip is without a doubt the most popular. Tulips are grown on an extremely large scale, especially in the Netherlands where their history goes back to the end of the sixteenth century. That was when the first tulips were noticed growing in the vicinity of Leiden. Now, more than 400 years later, billions of tulips are being cultivated, the vast majority of them being exported from Holland. This goes not only for dry bulb sales but also for the cut flowers produced from the tulip bulbs. These cut flowers, available year-round in principle, are most in demand from November to May. The 'garden tulips' are the result of hybridisation in which the species Tulipa gesneriana played an important role. Now there are more than 3,000 cultivated varieties registered, more being added each year to replace older ones.

AGAPANTHUS

Origin: South Africa

Agapanthus is sometimes used as a border plant, but is mainly a pot plant. During the winter, the pot or container should be taken indoors and grown as a greenhouse plant.

Agapanthus are divided into two groups

1 Evergreen group (Intermedius type, for example, variety 'Donau') which you can keep over the winter as a container plant indoors;

2 Leaf-losing group (for example, 'Blue Triumphator'), which die off before the winter and can be stored in a cool place.

Flowering period: July-August

Average plant height: up to 100 cm

Planting depth to base of the bulb: just deep enough to cover the rhizome.

Spacing between bulbs: 20 cm

Light requirements: full sun is essential (AM sun)

Landscape uses: borders and containers

CANNA

Origin: South and Middle America

Canna is a half-hardy summer rhizome. Most often used in pots and containers, they are enjoying a resurgence in popularity as a prime summer garden plant. Here, they are divided into three groups: tall, brown-leaved varieties; tall, green-leaved varieties and dwarf varieties. The blooms are up to 5 inches (12.5 cm) and the leaves are very decorative. Canna will bloom longer if you remove dead flowers. In warm climate zones Canna is perennial. In other areas the rhizomes should be lifted and stored in sand or peat.

Flowering period: July-October

Average plant height: 80 -200 cm

Planting depth to base of bulbs: just deep enough to cover with soil

Spacing between bulbs: 30 cm

Light requirements: sun is essential (full AM sun)

Landscape uses: containers and borders.

Service op maat

Kwaliteit, service en betrouwbaarheid staan bij ons voorop. De kracht bij Van Geest Nurseries is het vermogen om oplossingsgericht te denken, waardoor er voor u als klant een schitterend eindresultaat wordt neergezet. Om dit te kunnen realiseren volgen wij een aantal maatregelen om de service en kwaliteit op peil te houden. Zo brengen wij teltoeslag in rekening wanneer getallen lager zijn dan 500 stuks en de verkoopprijs van dit product lager is dan €500,00 per 1000. Deze toeslag bedraagt €3,00. Wanneer het totaal orderbedrag, exclusief extra kosten lager is dan €100,00 brengen wij €7,50 administratie kosten in rekening.

Exportklaar

Naast deze service is het ook mogelijk uw zending exportklaar te maken. Wij hebben veel ervaring met het exporteren van bloembollen naar diverse landen buiten de EU en kunnen zorgen voor transport met de bijbehorende exportdocumenten. Vraag gerust naar de mogelijkheden.

Verpakken

Wij passen ons zo goed mogelijk aan naar uw wens van aanleveren en inpakken. Of het nu gaat om een heester in een doos of om een gecombineerd pakket bloembollen, het is bij ons allemaal mogelijk. Desgewenst met een geprinte tekst op de folie of met een capperkaart aan het zakje. Met genoeg denken wij met u mee en vertellen u graag over de mogelijkheden.

Wij blijven streven naar een optimale service op maat waar u als klant centraal staat. Heeft u suggesties of vragen? Laat het ons weten, wij helpen u graag.

Met vriendelijke groet,

Sales team Van Geest Nurseries

Customer Service

Quality, service and reliability are our priorities. The strength of Van Geest Nurseries is the ability to provide solutions to customer needs, this ensuring supply and delivery of product in the exact format required. To achieve this level of service it is necessary to charge a fee of €3 per item when the quantity required is less than 500 units and the price per 1,000 is less than €500. Additionally, where an order amounts to less than €100 in total, an administration charge of €7.50 will be added to the total cost of goods required.

Export

Van Geest Nurseries have a great deal of experience in the export of flower bulbs outside the EU and can organise transport and the necessary export documentation required. Please contact us for additional information.

Packaging

We aim to accommodate all your delivery and packaging requirements, whether it is packing individual lines into suitable mailing cartons, or collating several varieties into appropriate outers. We have the facility to print text direct onto packets, or even attach a picture card if required. Whatever your needs, please get in touch and we will help you to achieve your aims.

We continually strive to improve and customise our service according to individual needs and our focus is on our customer requirements and fulfilling these to the very best of our ability. If you would like more information, please get in touch, we will be happy to help.

Best regards,

Sales team Van Geest Nurseries
